Join us for a Kokedama Workshop, where ordinary houseplants turn into living sculptures. Kokedama is a traditional Japanese planting technique that wraps a plant's roots into a soil sphere and finishes it with soft, living moss — earthy, elegant, and incredibly satisfying to make.

Wednesday, May 13 | 6:00–7:45 PM (approximately 2 hours) | Buckwalter Recreation Center

This hands-on workshop is beginner-friendly, creatively fun, and just the right amount of messy (the good kind). You'll leave with your own handcrafted Kokedama plus a care card with tips on how to display it at home — hanging from twine or styled on a decorative dish.

During this hands-on workshop, you'll get:
Step-by-step instruction in the Kokedama technique
Guidance on soil preparation, shaping, and moss wrapping
Tips for display and long-term plant care
A relaxed, creative environment suitable for all experience levels

Participants will leave with a completed, handcrafted Kokedama and the knowledge to continue exploring this art form on their own.
